

Patient Update 2

Patient continues to experience all previous symptoms.

When performing labs on the patient, the doctors notice that the patient's blood pressure continues to rise and fall in a cyclic fashion, regardless of what the patient is doing. These cycles occur even in the patient's sleep.

Upon further investigation, the doctors also found that the same happened with the blood glucose levels – they rose and fell in a cyclic fashion, even when the patient was asleep.

Panic attacks and depression have gotten progressively worse.
